FOUR COUNTIES IN FIGHT FOR CONGRESS

Complications in Dresser's District Over Rule Governing Nominations.

CAPT. CHARLES F. BARCLAY, Cameron's Candidate.

BELLEFONTE, March 11.—The contest for the Republican nomination for Congress in this district is attracting much interest. The friends of former Judge Love, of this county, are still hopeful that he will land the prize. The fight in Clearfield county presents the names of Representative Fred Schofield, of Clearfield, and M. I. McCreight, a banker, of DuBois.

Captain Barclay, of Cameron county, has a strong following, not only in his home county, but in other parts of the district.

S. R. Dresser, of McKean, who now represents his district, is not a candidate for re-election.

Each county in the district may have a candidate in the conference.

The proposition in the district today is a very peculiar one by reason of the rule which reads as follows:

"That each county in the district in all Congressional conferences shall be entitled to three conferees or delegates to be elected by each county in accordance with their respective rules; provided, that after the first day's session of the conference no nomination is made, then an adjournment shall be had for not more than one week or less than five days; and when the conference is reconvened and ten ballots shall have been taken and no nomination is made; then each county's representation shall be thereafter as follows: Three votes absolutely and one additional vote for each 1000 Republican voters or majority fraction thereof polled at the last preceding Presidential election. After ten more ballots have been had and no nomination made, the candidate receiving the lowest number of votes will be dropped and so continue on each succeeding ballot until a nomination is made."

The Observer.

In the current number of the Atlantic Monthly there is an article of the highest social and economic value by Professor F. W. Taussig, of Harvard, entitled, "The Love of Wealth and the Public Service." This article is the substance of an address which Professor Taussig, as President of the American Economic Association, delivered before that body at its recent meeting in Baltimore. It is a discussion of the substance which lead the majority of capable and ambitious Americans to seek a field for their ambition in private industry rather than in public service.

As a "captain of industry," the forceful American finds himself in a position of real and permanent power, a position in which he is able to lord it over thousands and ten thousands, and one which appeals to the admiring imagination of the world. What he values more than the luxury and distinction which wealth commands, is the opportunity to work out great enterprises to their completion without being hampered by checks at every turn or embarrassed by the knowledge that in one year or two years or four years his tenure of power will cease.

In the public service on the other hand, he is confronted by the watchful jealousy with which the executive power is always viewed in a democracy, and is surrounded by the constitutional checks, which a democracy has devised to render the power of the executive ineffective. The mayor of a city, elected for a short term, and tied as to his hands and feet by unsympathetic councils and courts, can do very little in the way of inaugurating and carrying to completion any great enterprise or reform. The same is true of governors and presidents. To the "big men" of the business world, the public service as a rule makes no appeal; and when a man of that class does respond to the appeal it is with a sense of conscientious sacrifice and not to gratify his ambition.

And yet the tendency these days is to look to the government to enlarge the scope of its administration and control. Municipal ownership is one form which this tendency assumes. Many would like to see the general government own and administer the railroads and telegraphs, as it already does the post office. But is there sufficient administrative capability in the public service to warrant the belief that it would be wise to entrust the government with such enlarged functions? This is a question which at least must give pause to the advocates of governmental ownership. The success of such a policy in bureaucratic Germany must not hastily be advanced as an argument for its adoption in democratic America. "It shows what can be done, not by educating a democracy, but by disregarding it." Our problems are the problems of a democracy, and we must solve them without giving up our essential democracy.

With this understood, Professor Taussig suggests that the machinery of government may be rendered more efficient, if we would lengthen the term of the executive, reduce the number of elected officers and enlarge the appointing power, and simplify the machinery of municipal and state governments. "All this involves an abrogation of power by the voter. He must consent to keep hands off,—if not forever, at least for long periods of time. Only by some such change will it be possible to enlist and hold in public service men of the needed capacity."

But it is absolutely necessary that we should have moral perception and resolution. "All the elaboration of more effective governmental apparatus is useless unless the public really wishes better government."

"The American people has undergone great changes in the last fifty years. No one can undertake to say what will be the outcome, after another fifty years, of the revolution in industry through which we are passing, and of our extraordinary mingling of nationalities. Yet I believe that the heart of the people is sound, and that democracy will emerge successfully from the difficulties of adjustment to the new conditions. Not without effort, not without trials, not without disappointment; least of all, by any rapid or revolutionary changes; yet in the end with success. * * * The worship of wealth is diminishing, and the respect for public service is increasing. * * * We may hope for greater repression of the selfish motives and the sordid activities, for freer play to noble ambition and public spirited effort, and not only for a stronger government, but for a better and purer democracy."

The pet parrot belonging to Mrs. O. P. Warner died last week. The bird was twenty-nine years old.

Left Emporium to Take a Wife.

William H. Weaver, who has resided in Emporium for fourteen years, left on Monday for Beech Creek, where he will reside permanently to engage in agricultural pursuits. Before entering upon his new life he commenced right by taking to himself a wife, in the person of Miss Rose Smith, an estimable lady, well known in Emporium. The ceremony was performed at Elmira, N. Y., yesterday. The PRESS and many friends join in wishing the couple a happy life. He was an industrious workman and the fact that he was for fourteen years in the employ of C. B. Howard Company and Emporium Furnace Company proves conclusively that he did not fail to do his work well.

Mr. Weaver has been an active member of local lodge of Odd Fellows, as also was he closely allied with Rescue Hook and Ladder Co., both of which will miss him.

Return Engagement of the Real Widow Brown.

"Laugh and the world laughs with you, weep and you weep alone." You may be feeling blue and in the mental "dumps" on the evening of Monday, March 19. If so, just drop into the Emporium Opera House and see "The Real Widow Brown." That charming lady will hold a reception, diversified by tuneful songs, captivating dances, by an assembly of some of the most clever comedians and comedienne on the farce comedy stage. And strange to say, there's a plot too, and that, together with clever acting and amusing complications will keep you in unbounded hilarity until the final fall of the curtain. But kindly observe this injunction: Don't be too boisterous in your merriment as your neighbor may have made a mistake and thought he was to see a tragical drama. In that case, blandly excuse yourself with the remark that you understand "The Real Widow Brown" is for laughter purposes only. This is a guaranteed attraction. Money back if not satisfied.

Youngsters are Now Heading For Schools.

MILLVILLE, N. J., March 11.—Since Prof. Harry F. Stauffer, supervising principal of public schools, began to enforce the new school law and issue orders to parents to send their children between the ages of six and fourteen years to school, or suffer the consequences, the schools are filling up at an astonishing rate and the Board of Education is experiencing great difficulty in accommodating the many youngsters.

The truant officer has had great trouble in forcing some of the parents to send their children to school and Prof. Stauffer issued warrants for the parents, but when the officer went to the home the child was surrendered to be placed in school. The enrollment is now 2030, which is many more than have been enrolled in previous years.

Able Clergymen.

Rev. R. C. Knox and wife, of Lock Haven, have been visiting friends in Emporium during the past week, guests of Mrs. Mary Mayze and family. Rev. Knox officiated on his old charge last Sabbath, preaching at Moore Hill, Beechwood and Howard Siding. Of course his many friends were delighted to have him with them again. He is an energetic minister and hard-worker in the "cause."

Birthday Party.

Miss Leona Coppersmith entertained twenty-three of her little friends last Saturday in honor of her eighth birthday, at her home on Allegheny Avenue. ## NEW WARNER CHANGE.

W. G. Gilbert, of Austin, the New Proprietor, Takes Possession.

The popular Warner House, so successfully conducted by Joseph L. Wheeler has been sold to W. G. Gilbert, of Hotel Goodyear, Austin, Mr. Gilbert taking possession last Friday. Consideration, $38,000. Mr. Wheeler after purchasing the property made extensive repairs and improvements that placed the New Warner on a plane equal to the best hotels in this section of the state and enjoyed a large patronage and extensive reputation for first-class service. Our town owes Mr. Wheeler a vote of thanks for the manner in which he conducted the house. He expects to engage in other business, possibly in South Carolina, but his family will reside here for a time at least. The many friends of this pleasant family hope they may continue to make Emporium their home.

Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Gilbert, who for several years have conducted the Hotel Goodyear at Austin—and still conduct the same—are experienced hotel people, with a wide circle of friends. Mr. Gilbert was for many years a commercial agent and enjoys the confidence and respect of the business men. We bespeak for Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert, who come to Emporium so highly recommended by our Austin friends, the same cordial treatment bestowed upon Mr. and Mrs. Wheeler, whom we all greatly respect.

Few changes are to be made. Mrs. E. M. Hurteau, who has as housekeeper labored so zealously to maintain the reputation of the house will soon retire to enjoy a rest. A new chef, Mr. John Diehl, of Elmira, N. Y., has arrived and will keep up the reputation for excellent meals. Geo. Hurteau remains as day clerk.

What the Pittsburg Post Thinks of Tom Waters.

"Neighborhoodly Neighbors" a new musical farce company, written and produced by Tom Waters and assisted by an exceptionally clever company, made its debut at the Empire Theatre last night to an audience that completely filled the big East End Theatre. The piece scored a decided hit. It is indeed one of the best and most laughable comedies Pittsburg has listened to for some time. At Emporium Opera House to-night.

"Neighborhoodly Neighbors"

A three act musical mixture, with the popular comedian, Mr. Tom Waters, as the star, at opera house to-night. Don't fail to attend. Your money back if not satisfied.

Met With an Accident.

Last Sunday evening Mrs. James Davins had the misfortune to fall and break her arm. Dr. Falk assisted by Dr. Groves set the injured member, and the patient is now getting along as well as possible.

Prospects Bright.

Capt. C. F. Barclay was in Emporium last evening conferring with friends. His candidacy for Congress is being received well not only here but in all parts of the district.

Killed by Flyer.

The east bound Buffalo Flyer struck and instantly killed a man, about five telegraph poles west of Hulings Tower, Friday p. m., March 9th, while he was walking on the track. He appeared to be about 25 years of age, brown hair and blue eyes, five feet seven inches tall, weighs about 135 pounds. His head was crushed in, one foot smashed and both legs and arms broken. No clew to his identity was secured. He was buried at Wistar, Monday, March 12th. The burial was in charge of overseer of the poor Wallace Gaskel.

The Real Widow Brown, Coming Back, Next Monday Night.

If you want to enjoy a long, hearty laugh of 180 minutes, go to see "The Real Widow Brown" which comes to the Emporium Opera House, Monday evening, March 19. It possesses the essential qualities and virtues of a genuine farce comedy: Clean, pure, exhilarating, and with sufficient spice of captivating songs and clever dances to compose one of the best drawing attractions on the road. The author has constructed an ingenious plot on which the laughable incidents hinge, a seemingly strange anomaly, as the average farce comedy is as barren as the Klondyke is of a dress suit case. Its cardinal object is to make you laugh and enjoy yourself. Money back if not satisfied.

We are under obligations to the Independent for favors received, for which they will please accept our thanks.

The subject discussed by the Window Sill Club the other evening was "Can an Honest Man Play Poker." The decision was, he can but he cannot win anything.

Uncle Peter Beattie says he agrees with our great financiers, that we need a more elastic currency. He wishes now it was so elastic he could stretch a dollar bill over the bills he owes for cigars and then snap it back into his vest pocket.

A woman living over on the Portage writes the PRESS asking what to use in cleaning a carpet. Ye editor says if she is a married woman, tell her to use her husband.

One of our town kids Sunday evening placed an umbrella near one of our church doors with a string attached to it; he says that eleven different members of the church picked up that umbrella and carried it the length of the string before the dropped it.

We noticed two ladies walking on Sixth street the other day. Passing another lady, one of them remarked, her coat is brown just the color of her hair. Yes replied the other they were both colored by the same dye.

Spring poetry is coming to the PRESS office by the ton. Here is a sample from North Creek:

The crows are flying o'er the hills, The teals begin to sprout, The snow is gone, the brooks and rills Will soon be full of trout; The city man will soon be here Mose Minard for his guide, They'll have a case of bottled beer, And other stuff beside.

The population of Morocco can only be guessed. No census has ever been taken. The best authorities estimate the inhabitants to number about 7,500,000.

There are British, German and French postoffices in the principal towns of Morocco. The Moorish government has no postoffice of its own. Mail for the government is carried from town to town and from village to village by special carriers.

Probably the most varied and valuable collection of jewels and precious stones in the world is that which has come into the possession of the Pope at Rome by right of succession. Cincinnati pays more per capita in life insurance premiums than any other city in America, according to the conclusion of an expert employed by the Ohio Life Policy Owners' Association—paying over $4,000,000 last year. The rate per capita of the principal cities is: Cincinnati, 10.77; Boston, 10.74; New York, 6.67; St. Louis, 6.48; Philadelphia, 6.12; Chicago, 4.08.

In an almost perfect state of preservation and easily recognizable, the dead body of a guide named Nagi, a native of Aosta, Italy, who fell into a crevasse in 1877, near the summit of Monte Rosa, has just been recovered from the ice. Nagi was descending the mountain in company with two Milanese Alpinists when he suddenly disappeared, and the cord which bound him to the others was cut by a sharp piece of ice.

Report has spread abroad that the United States dollar presses at the mints stopped after printing copies, and that these pieces of money made their escape, and are now somewhere in the great ocean of circulation. The attorney-general says that any man who is proved to have passed a United States dollar bearing date of 1905 will be punished for passing counterfeit money, for the director of the mint says not a single silver dollar was coined in 1905.

In 1885 congress authorized the establishment of an elaborate system of coast fortifications. Since then the government has spent $119,000,000 on the enterprise—$64,000,000 on defenses and $55,000,000 for gun factories, sites for fortifications, torpedoes, gun tests, and for defenses of insular possessions. A congressman who has studied the question carefully declares that when the present scheme of fortifications is completed 46,000 men will be required for the defenses, at an annual expense of $50,000,000.

Secretary Taft is the champion long-distance traveler of modern times. Since he became governor of the Philippines, in May, 1900, Secretary Taft has traveled at least 100,000 miles in pursuance of his official duties. Of the time required for his journeyings, 360 days were spent at sea and six full weeks in railway trains. In the course of his first trip to the Philippines Secretary Taft made a journey of 5,500 miles around the islands, establishing provincial governments. His original trip out by way of Shanghai and Hong Kong covered nearly 12,000 miles.

One dozen churches are completed every working day in this country, and of these less than one-third have spires. And most of the new edifices that are topped by pointed shafts are in Roman Catholic parishes. The reign of the spire as a symbol of the place of worship is coming to an end; the passing of the "finger pointing to heaven" is becoming an actuality. In the last few years church architecture has undergone some remarkable changes—speaking of the United States only. The trend of the times is commercial, therefore practical. Utility is the keynote that is struck in every line of endeavor.

FREE TRADE RECOMMENDER

The Pet Aversion of Gov. Folk, of Kansas, Is Prosperity Promoting Protection.

At a Democratic banquet in Kansas Gov. Folk made a bitter attack upon the protective tariff principle. In his remarks on grafting he spoke of "the tariff grafters, with their millions of ill-gotten wealth, wrung from the people by means of special privileges given them by law." Mr. Folk, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, has harped on "tariff robbers" in previous speeches in Ohio and Massachusetts. A protective tariff excites him to vituperative anger. Mr. Folk is a free trader. In his attitude as a public man this is the most significant fact, because it is the direction in which he could work the greatest damage if he had the power. He is against all protection. He would not resort to it to protect American wages, or for any other purpose. If the matter rested with him, protection would be wiped out at a blow. He calls it robbery and its results the accumulations of graft. It is the extreme free trade view, with the addition of abusive rancor. Protection is Folk's pet aversion, and he bubbles over with epithets when he refers to it.

It is a matter of consequence to put a distinct mark on politicians who have this capacity for mischief to the country's industrial interests and prosperity. In most cases, in these times, Democratic speakers are shy about coming out flat-footed for free trade. They prefer to talk about tariff revision or reciprocity. But Mr. Folk was born and raised in a southern state, where the Democrats accept the South Carolina view that protection is something utterly depraved. Mr. Folk denounces it as criminal, as a robbery conducted by grafters loaded with ill-gotten wealth wrung from the people by legalized special privileges. He has taken his stand for absolute free trade, and it will count for more than anything else in estimates of his public purposes. Missouri has a great stake in protected industries. Its manufacturing interests have increased immensely and keep on growing. Suppose Mr. Folk had his way, and ripped them up with free trade? Would Missourians gain or lose by that catalytic act? Would every wheel continue to turn? Would employment at the best wages continue to be abundant? The answer is self-evident. The soup-house era of a dozen years ago would return. Factories would again shut down. The dinner pail would be empty. There would be two or three men for every job. There would be misery and ruin on every hand, as in the free trade period between 1893 and the defeat of that prosperity-killing party.

How would the zinc and lead miners of Missouri like to get another slice of free trade times? Mr. Folk beckons them on, but would they follow such a guide? Would the great manufacturing population of Missouri take a bait like that? It would be a mad thing to do, a tossing away of the highest known prosperity for the opposite, as fully demonstrated in the last Democratic administration, when, with every department of the government in their hands, the free trade Democratic party plunged the country into a morass of idleness and want. It was a return to protection that extricated it. Mr. Folk proposes to take the back track, but he will find few in Missouri, outside of the South Carolina tariff school, to accept his invitation. A serious threat of free trade in this country would convulse it to its deepest industrial foundations.

CRITICISM AND COMMENT.

New York Democrats are dismayed to find that whenever they meet to confer on the state campaign the Hearst is at the door.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

If Grover Cleveland were to express his candid opinion it would be, doubtless, that Secretary Taft is a man of full presidential weight.—Chicago Tribune.

Senator Patterson would at least be justified in asking which one of the large number of Democratic parties it is proposed to put him out of.—Philadelphia Press.

There is no occasion for all this worry about President Roosevelt's future. Mr. Roosevelt is an energetic man who can make his own future.—Washington Star.

A Missouri Democratic paper objects to calling the Republican party the one that "does things." An effort to write out a list of Democratic achievements nationally is apt to result in silence in pursuing this question.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

The attention of the Democratic party is called to the fact that while President Castro has only 8,000 troops he claims to have 23,000. The day may come when Castro will find it to his advantage to settle in the United States, and in that event the Democratic party might need his services as an ante-election predictor.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Mr. Bryan says he would never accept money from a corporation. A corporation does not buy lecture tickets or newspaper syndicate articles.—Washington Post.

There has been much reason for laying stress upon the balance of trade theory in the United States; much reason to hold that in this country excess of exports spells prosperity. Excess of exports over imports amounting from $459,000,000 to $599,000,000 a year in the past eight years of Dingley tariff protection has certainly spelled prosperity with a large P.—American Economist.

CLAIMED BY BRYANITES.

Credit of the Railroad-Rate Issue Is Taken by Democrats in Congress.

From the viewpoint of the political maneuvering, one may applaud the claim of the Democrats in congress, and the use they are making of it, that the railroad rate issue is of Democratic parentage, says the Washington Star. It may not bear the closest examination, for the populists were busy in that field years ago. But it is true that within the past few years the Bryan wing of the Democracy, taking its cue from its leader, has had a good deal to say on the subject, and as the populists have all but entirely disappeared, their imprint is faint. And, anyhow, Mr. Bryan has always been half populist, and may fairly maintain the right to dabble in populist doctrine.

It is to be questioned, however, if those Republicans are wise who are using Mr. Bryan as a bugaboo in the premises; who are insisting upon a particular line of conduct by asserting that if that line is not taken smash is just ahead for their party, and Mr. Bryan will be the next president of the United States. To sound that note is virtually to concede all that is claimed for Mr. Bryan by the most active of his supporters and assist them in their campaign for his renomination. For if only this rate bill stands between Mr. Bryan and the White House, he is reasonably certain to occupy the comfortable mansion.

This is true, for the reason that no matter what bill may be passed by congress, the railroads will challenge it in the courts, with the most formidable array of legal talent ever employed in this country. If the bill holds, then the Bryanites will quote Republicans as conceding that it was Bryan pressure that passed it. If it fails, and other legislation is necessary, then the Bryanites will claim that they are the proper ones to give the people the remedy required.

It is the duty of the Republicans to give the country a sound and sincere statute on this subject. While not the only issue before the country, it is perhaps the most important of all at this time, and certainly the one most talked about. To trifle with it, therefore, would be to alienate public confidence. If a coach-and-six can be driven through the law, the team is all ready to go through, and if it does go through good-by to the men who shall have arranged the opening.

TARIFF AND THE SOUTH.

Industrial Prosperity Chiefly Responsible for Protection Sentiment.

While some New Englanders are demanding tariff revision, an increasing number of enterprising and progressive men in the south are favoring adherence to the policy of a protective tariff. The change in southern sentiment in this particular is very noticeable and highly significant, says the Denver Republican.

President Roosevelt's personal popularity in the south is no doubt working wonders among the people of that section in respect to their attitude toward political issues and parties. The fact that the Republican party advocates protection and the further fact that its most conspicuous representative at the present time is President Roosevelt makes many southern men feel more kindly toward the organization. They may not be prepared to announce themselves as Republicans, but they certainly no longer look upon a southern Republican as a traitor to his section of the country.

Industrial development in the south is, however, chiefly responsible for the growing sentiment in favor of protection. Cotton manufacturing and the production of iron and steel have increased enormously, and thus a manufacturing class composed of both capitalists and laborers has developed in that section. It is but natural if these people are as much in favor of protection as their competitors in other parts of the country.

Pacification of Germany.

There will be no "tariff war" between the United States and Germany. This appears to be practically certain as a result of conferences at Washington between Secretary of State Root, Secretary of the Treasury Shaw and Baron Speck von Sternberg, the German ambassador. It was made clear at these consultations that neither country desired to enter into a profitless contest over the question of tariff rates, and that both parties were in a conciliatory spirit. At the same time, the United States stood firm on the principle involved—that it could not grant Germany any favors under tariff rulings that would not be given to other countries. Certain provisions of the law may be interpreted liberally, but all must share alike in that interpretation. There seems to be no doubt that Germany will accept the situation and will not enforce its new tariff in a way to discriminate injuriously against American imports.—Troy Times.

W. J. Bryan announces as one of the discoveries in his tour around the world that Japan is the home of the earthquake. And Bill, he knows an earthquake when he meets one.—Kansas City World.

Perhaps it is safe to admit that "the tariff is a tax." The evidence from Great Britain, furnished through the New York Evening Post, goes to show that it is a tax which the other fellow must pay in order to get the American markets, and the American people are entirely willing to have it that way.—Troy Times.

NERVOUS DYSPEPSIA

A Desperately Serious Case Cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Brought to the very verge of starvation by the rejection of all nourishment, her vitality almost destroyed, the recovery of Mrs. J. A. Wyatt, of No. 1189 Seventh street, Des Moines, Iowa, seemed hopeless. Her physicians utterly failed to reach the seat of the difficulty and death must have resulted if she had not pursued an independent course suggested by her sister's experience.

Mrs. Wyatt says: "I had pain in the region of the heart, palpitation and shortness of breath so that I could not walk very fast. My head ached very badly and I was seized with vomiting spells whenever I took any food. A doctor was called who pronounced the trouble gastritis, but he gave me no relief. Then I tried a second doctor without benefit. By this time I had become very weak. I could not keep the most delicate broth on my stomach, and at the end of a month I was scarcely more than skin and bone and was really starving to death."

"Then I recalled how much benefit my sister had got from Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and decided to take them in place of the doctor's medicine. It proved a wise decision for they helped me as nothing else had done. Soon I could take weak tea and crackers and steadily more nourishment. In two weeks I was able to leave my bed. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were the only thing that checked the vomiting and as soon as that was stopped my other difficulties left me. I have a vigorous appetite now and am able to attend to all the duties of my home. I praise Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People to all my friends because I am thoroughly convinced of their merit."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists and by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

TRADE AND TRAFFIC.

Smyrna's trade in cotton goods amounts to $5,000,000 a year.

Seal skins to the number of 3,128 were shipped from Alaska last season.

During the year 1904 Siam exported more than $12,000,000 worth of rice. Teakwood is second in value.

Last year's output of new ships in England (steam and sail) was 515, with a tonnage of 1,355,756, as against 403 ships in 1904, with a tonnage of 1,049,860.

The foreign trade of Philadelphia last year reached an aggregate of almost $140,000,000, an increase of about $4,000,000 in exports and $14,000,000 imports, largely materials for use in American factories.

The report of the Mexican minister of finance shows the revenue for the fiscal year ending June 30 to have been $92,083,886, with disbursements of $79,152,795. The revenue for the current year is estimated at $90,073,500, and expenditures $89,897,390.

Tientsin stands second among the treaty ports of China in the gross value of the trade that passes through the port, and also in the amount of revenue collected by the customs. In so far as American goods are concerned, Tientsin even has a rival claim on Shanghai for first place.

The Chinese boycott of American flour is operating to the advantage of sailing vessels on the Pacific coast. It results in a smaller demand for flour, which in large quantities has been shipped across the Pacific by steamships. In consequence a larger amount of wheat is being shipped by sailing vessels.

The total commerce between the United States and France amounted in the fiscal year 1905 to $166,000,000, of which $76,000,000 represented exports to France, and $90,000,000 imports from that country. The United States exported to France nearly all the copper and cotton used by that country, the total amount of these two articles being about $48,000,000.

A NECESSARY EVIL.

Experience of a Minister Who Tried to Think That of Coffee.

"A descendant of the Danes, a nation of coffee drinkers, I used coffee freely till I was 20 years old," writes a clergyman from Iowa. "At that time I was a student at a Biblical Institute, and suddenly became aware of the fact that my nerves had become demoralized, my brain dull and sluggish and that insomnia was fastening its hold upon me."

"I was loath to believe that these things came from the coffee I was drinking, but at last was forced to that conclusion, and quit it."

"I was so accustomed to a hot table beverage and felt the need of it so much, that after abstaining from coffee for a time and recovering my health, I went back to it. I did this several times, but always with disastrous results. I had about made up my mind that coffee was a necessary evil."

"About this time a friend told me that I would find Postum Food Coffee very fine and in many respects away ahead of coffee. So I bought some and, making it very carefully according to the directions, we were delighted to find that he had not exaggerated in the least. From that day to this we have liked it better than the old kind of coffee or anything else in the way of a table drink."

"Its use gave me, in a very short time, an increase in strength, clearness of brain and steadiness of nerves; and sleep, restful and restoring, came back to me."

"I am thankful that we heard of Postum, and shall be glad to testify at any time to the good it has done me." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

There's a reason. Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in 100 pages.

Letter to A. Brady.

Emporium, Pa.

Dear Sir: Here's a 15 year yarn; you like yarn, don't you? It comes from Odell Hardware Co., Greensboro, N. C.

Mr. R. G. Glenn's house in that town was painted Devco about 15 years ago, and next, this year.

A house next door was painted about the same time with another paint, supposed to be Devco. This house was painted again about 6 years ago with still another paint, that professes to be extraordinary.

Glenn's house, before it was painted just now, was in as good condition as that one. Devco 15 years; the other five years—guess that's about how to put it.

But this extraordinary paint is a bluff; Devco is the point.

Yours truly
F. W. DEVCO & Co.,
New York.

The Strenuous Life.

Results In Stomach Troubles and Physical Breakdown. L. Taggart Offers Simple Remedy.

The strenuous life of modern times forces people to rush through their meals hastily, hurrying from the table in the mad rush after the almighty dollar.

The result is incomplete digestion, inflammation of the walls of the stomach, and lack of secretion of the gastric juices, ending in chronic stomach trouble and nervous breakdown.

How much better it would be to eat more slowly, cure the stomach trouble with Mi-o-na, and soon regained perfect health. The headaches, sleeplessness, nervous troubles, pain after eating, specks before the eyes, backaches, melancholy and gloomy foreboding would be soon overcome and perfect health and strength would be restored.

Proper treatment of the weakened digestive system with Mi-o-na will cure every case of stomach trouble. The results of this treatment are so astonishing and so pronounced, that those who have tried it never fail to appreciate its value as a healing agent.

So reliable is Mi-o-na in curing all forms of stomach weakness and troubles that L. Taggart gives a signed guarantee that the remedy will cost nothing unless it cures. Each box of Mi-o-na sells for 50 cents, and is invaluable to anyone who suffers with indigestion, nervousness or weak stomach.

That is just what every family should do. When kept at hand ready for instant use, a cold may be checked at the outset and cured in much less time than after it has become settled in the system. This remedy is also without a peer for use in children, and will prevent the attack when given as soon as the child becomes hoarse, or even after the croupy cough appears, which can only do when the remedy is kept at hand. One would think the Laxative idea in a cough syrup should have been advanced long before it was. It seems the only rational remedy for Coughs and Colds would be to move the bowels and clean the mucous membranes of the throat and lungs at the same time. Kennedy's Laxative Honey and Tar does this. It is the Original Laxative Cough Syrup, the best known remedy for Coughs, Colds, Croup, Whooping Cough, etc. Tastes good and harmless. Sold by R. C. Dodson.

TO THE PEOPLE

Rich's Famous All Wool Sock has fallen into competition with a very inferior article. The imitation is so perfect that only an expert is able to detect the counterfeit with its cotton and shoddy mixtures, until the sock is put into service. Unscrupulous competitors are representing the sock as Rich's All Wool, thus deceiving the customer and injuring our reputation.

To protect ourselves and the trade, in the future Rich's Socks will bear a Red Seal Trade Mark printed in white, a fac-simile of which is shown above.

"Gassaway" kept out of sight most of the week but showed up yesterday. He has been in a brown study, studying the bible and is now in a brighter condition to meet the "arguers."

Mrs. Jos. Kinsley, of Sinnamahoning, and Miss Alice Bush, of Canoe Run, were PRESS callers on Tuesday, the former to change the address of their paper to Sinnamahoning, where Mr. Kinsley is employed at the new powder plant.

E. J. Smith, of Callery, Pa., (formerly a resident of Emporium) reports the arrival of a bouncing 8½ pound boy. Say, Smithy, we tried to have Harry Lloyd set up the cigars but he wouldn't loosen up, even claiming he had sold the dice and was conscientiously opposed to using matches.

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Robinson were PRESS callers last Friday. We regret we were absent. After visiting relatives and friends in town until Monday they departed for Westboro, their home, having enjoyed their trip east. Their friends were glad to meet them and found them the same as of yore.

Hon. Josiah Howard and L. W. Gleason, chairman of the Republican County Committee, attended the reception given at Washington, D. C., last evening to Hon. Samuel W. Pennypacker, Governor of Pennsylvania. Ye editor hoped to be present but the late snow made the walking too bad.

John Snyder, station agent at Cameron, was a PRESS visitor Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Eick last evening entertained a party of lady and gentlemen friends at six o'clock dinner, at their pleasant home on Woodland Avenue.

Serious Accident.

Claude Seavor, while driving to town with a load of lumber, last Thursday morning, from his home on Whittemore Hill, met with a painful accident, just above the Keystone Powder Co's plant. The boards not being properly secured, slid forward against the team, rendering it unmanageable, throwing the young man out, the wagon passing over his body. Unconscious and helpless he was picked up and conveyed to his home by a neighbor, who came along. Dr. Falk was summoned to attend to his injuries. His condition was at first alarming, but the more serious indications gradually passed away, and his recovery in two or three weeks is now confidently expected. His escape from serious consequences or even death seems miraculous and his friends are much gratified at the outcome.

Celebrated Her Twelfth Birthday.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Pearsall gave a children's party in the Opera House last evening in honor of their daughter Ruth's twelfth birthday. Fifty young boys and girls were present and were entertained in a grand manner by games, music and dancing. Miss Ruth was the recipient of many pretty presents.

Dynamite Question Settled.

As we stated in last week's PRESS, the meeting between our citizens and R. R. Co., held last Thursday afternoon had settled the agitated question of leaving dynamite cars standing within the borough limits. Burgess R. M. Overhiser and President of Council W. H. Cramer, ably seconded by Mr. B. W. Green and Mr. J. F. Parsons, on behalf of our citizens, in a forceful but respectful manner, presented their grievances. The R. R. Co., informed the committee they had already commenced the construction of sidings west of Emporium, where all dynamite cars would be congregated and taken up by through trains. This greatly annoying and dangerously near "death trap" at our very doors has, we believe, been abated. The railroad company desire all violations of the laws laid down to be promptly reported to General Manager. Let us have peace.

STORIES OF THE SECRET SERVICE

BY Capt. Patrick D. Tyrrell

STORY No. 4

The Biebush Band

Being an Account of the Capture and Conviction of That Notorious Band of Counterfeiters of Which Fred Biebush Was the Leader.

By CAPTAIN PATRICK D. TYRRELL

[Copyright, 1905, by Marion G. Schettlin.]
Rev. Andrew Jackson Thomas had delivered a strong sermon at the Morgan street Methodist church in St. Louis, and at its close extended an earnest invitation for sinners to come to the "mourner's bench," seek Divine forgiveness and forsake the errors of their past lives. In the good old-fashioned Methodist way Rev. Mr. Thomas left the pulpit at the close of the sermon and, in a fine barytone voice, took the lead in the ringing song of invitation to the unrepentant. The lines of the hymn as he sang them were frequently punctuated with short impassioned appeals to those who were not known as church members. Then, to render his appeals more direct and personal, the minister started down the aisle, shaking hands with the "unrepentant," speaking an earnest word to this one and that one as he went.

Rev. Mr. Thomas was the type of minister familiarly known as the revivalist. He was about 45 years old, almost six feet tall, of robust physique. His hair and beard were brown, and his eye open and fearless. He was a vigorous and magnetic, if not polished speaker, a fine singer, a good "mixer" among all classes and apparently imbued with a sincere desire to bring sinners to repentance. He had not been in St. Louis long at the time of which I am writing, 26 years ago, but during his residence there, by his devotion to his ministerial labors, had endeared himself to the little flock of at another time of notes for an aggressive Christian men and women worshipping in the church at Morgan and Twenty-fourth streets.

While he was passing among the sinners in his congregation the night on which I introduce Rev. Mr. Thomas to my readers he stopped at a pew well toward the rear of the church. The visitor was a plainly dressed man of middle age, evidently a workman. The minister spoke a few words to him, still grasping his hand, and there was some response by the visitor. The singing was in progress and the conversation held in undertones, so that the words passed between the two were not distinguishable by those near. The incident was no different, to all appearances, from a score of others in the church that night when the minister imperturbed the wayward to repent.

The church services ended, Rev. Mr. Thomas left the building with several members of the congregation, chatting of religious matters, until their homeward paths diverged.

No attention had been paid the visitor at the church after the minister apparently had failed in inducing him to come to the "mourner's bench," but he had left before the services closed and had taken a rapid westerly course. As soon as the pastor separated from the members of his flock he walked well out of their sight and hearing in a leisurely way and then suddenly adopted a quick, business-like gait. Walking rapidly west to Grand avenue, he turned north. His home was in Finney avenue, west of Grand avenue, and near the intersection of these thoroughfares the "Rock" church, an imposing Catholic edifice, loomed blackly in the night, casting deep shadows over the sidewalk on the east side of Grand avenue. As he approached this point Rev. Mr. Thomas slackened his pace and became alert, peering ahead into the shadows as though looking for some one. He was not disappointed. From the opposite direction, timing his pace so that he would meet the minister in the deepest shadows of the church, emerged the man who had occupied the rear pew at the evening church service. There were no other pedestrians in sight.

"Hello, Harry," said the minister in a low tone, halting.

"Hello, Andy," responded the other, swinging about and falling into the preacher's stride.

Glancing furtively around him, Rev. Mr. Thomas thrust his hand under the skirt of his ministerial coat and, drawing forth a small, heavy package, passed it quickly to his companion.

"Harry" pocketed it as quickly as it had been passed to him.

"When'll I see you again?" asked the receiver of the package.

"I can't say now; be at the church in a few nights," replied the minister.

All this had transpired in less time than it took to cross Grand avenue. On the other side there was a low-spoken good night, the minister turned into Finney avenue and his companion continued in the main thoroughfare. An hour later he was in his small room in North Sixth street. The minister went direct to his home and let himself in with a latch key.

No band of dealers in "coney" or counterfeit money ever gave the United States secret service more trouble than they found an immense lot of stolen silverware, plate and jewelry. There is said to have been found a good-sized sack of watches. He was arrested, but escaped punishment. At this time his permanent headquarters were established in St. Louis, but his agents worked throughout the entire Mississippi valley. Personally he dealt at wholesale only, negotiating with extreme caution and keenness of discernment for the sale of very large quantities of his wares.

In Missouri at that time there was a state law which provided that the testimony of no man who had served a penitentiary term was admissible in the courts of the state. Fred Biebush was familiar with this provision and followed one rule—as immutable in his business as the laws of the Medes and Persians—never to deal directly with any man who could not prove he had been a convict. And he went even further toward the extreme of caution, for while he would negotiate in person for the sale of counterfeit money with an ex-convict and would receive from such a one the honest money in payment for the bogus currency, he would invariably deliver the "coney" through the hands of a third party. So far as I know there is no man who can say he ever received "coney" from Fred Biebush except his time-tested personal agents. His rule against doing business with any except ex-convicts was the thing that rendered it practically impossible to convict him. Besides observing the precautions mentioned, he usually succeeded in bringing his subordinates under his power so that his safety was theirs. For 25 years he pursued his criminal career unpunished.

Before the present system of national banks was established Biebush flourished wonderfully in his operations in the counterfeiters of the bills of the old

did the "Biebush gang," that operated in and from St. Louis for more than 25 years. In fact, long before there was such a government institution as the secret service division of the treasury department the name of Biebush was a proud one in criminal circles. It had been carried to distinction in the annals of crime by Frederick Biebush, who was born in Prussia in 1823 and emigrated to this country when he was 21 years old. Prior to his arrival in America nothing is known of him, but his history since is a romance of crime. His whole life was devoted to crime as a chosen profession, and his principal pursuit had been the exacting one of a wholesale dealer in counterfeit money. In this business he had gained the sobriquet of the "great southwest knacker."

The readers of this narrative who read my recent account of the events leading up to the attempt to steal the body of Abraham Lincoln will recall that I then made clear the different hands through which counterfeit money passes before it reaches the public. The engraver, printer, dealer, shover and boulder carrier each has his distinct function to perform in the process of robbing the people. The dealer is the circulator, and, if he has suitable plates or dies, can flood the country with counterfeit money long after every engraver or die cutter in the business is behind prison bars.

To the business of dealing in "coney" Biebush had devoted his time and genius, yet he found leisure to act as a receiver of stolen goods, and was the patron and financial backer of thieves and burglars. He furnished the engravers of counterfeit plates with capital, helped produce the plates, bought plates, bought presses, ink and paper, and then found trustworthy men to act as his agents in the circulation of the spurious currency. For 30 years he had followed his chosen calling with unequalled success, his bold and profitable operations extending from Illinois to Texas.

Within a year of his arrival in the United States Fred Biebush began his criminal career. He was then a broad-shouldered man of fine physical appearance. The year 1850 found him keeping a saloon called the War Eagle, after a famous steamboat of antebellum days, in Third street, St. Louis. His place was frequented by river men of the better class, for he was a jovial chap and a good business man as well. I am not familiar with the way in which suspicion first attached to him, but one day the St. Louis police raided his saloon, and, buried in the walls, state banks. He did no manufacturing in those days, but from his headquarters in St. Louis he jobbed the "coney" in enormous quantities all over the country through such distinguished dealers as Nelson Driggs, Louis Sleight and others, the amount of representative dollars running into the hundreds of thousands. In this way he accumulated a large fortune. Then he went into the manufacturing business himself.

Not being an engraver nor a printer, he had to hire these artisans, and soon formed a partnership with John Peter McCartney, for whom he had formerly been an agent. McCartney was an engraver of high rank and the new criminal team was a strong one. McCartney did the engraving and Biebush superintended the printing and circulating. Later he acquired plates engraved by such high-class cutters as Benjamin Boyd and William Shelley. His fortune grew by tremendous leaps. He was arrested 57 times in all; but the early arrests never resulted in conviction for two reasons—his caution with whom he dealt and his wealth.

Many times he was arrested undoubtedly so that the officers making the arrest could "bleed" him. Never was a malefactor more adroit in the use of money with public officers, police and court officers than Fred Biebush. One of his favorite methods of escaping conviction was to "railroad" the state's witness out of the way by use of money or his secret power over them. After one arrest there was found in his possession letters from different members of the secret service offering to stand by him and help him out of trouble, of course for a consideration. I am glad to say that such operatives in the service rapidly grew fewer.

His wealth and power were also indicated by the finding in his possession a gate amount of $60,000, signed by prominent citizens of St. Louis. He could command the most powerful politicians and state officers.

At the end of the civil war Col. H. C. Whitley was appointed in charge of the newly organized secret service, and determined to bring such criminals as Fred Biebush, "Pete" McCartney, John Hart, "Bill" Burney, Thomas Hale and other notorious counterfeiters to justice. Operative John Eagan was put in charge of the St. Louis district, and, after much work, arrested Biebush for selling counterfeit money. Eagan pushed the case with a vigor unknown to Biebush, forced the prisoner to early trial, and succeeded in having him sentenced to ten years in the penitentiary. The wily old German stayed behind the bars exactly one-half that many months, when he returned to St. Louis and resumed operations.

Under the direction of Col. Whitley a "stool pigeon" named McCabe was sent to Biebush and succeeded in paying him marked money for "coney." Biebush was arrested again in 1869, released on bail, and brought to trial. He had, as usual, "fixed" the government's witnesses and thought he was again to escape. In the meantime, however, William Shelley had been caught in the act of engraving a plate. The secret service learned that he had recently come from St. Louis, where he had made some plates for Biebush. Shelley was induced to return to St. Louis and tell his story in court. When

JOHN MEYERS, ALIAS "HOOSIER BILL."

Biebush appeared in court he was suddenly brought face to face with Shelley, and his bravado failed him for the first time. He escaped from the court room, forfeiting $20,000 bail, and disappeared.

Secret service operatives were put on his trail. A close watch was kept on the movements of Mrs. Biebush, who, in a day or so was traced to Cabaret Island, opposite the town of Venice, in the Mississippi river. There she met her husband in a corn field. Biebush retiring to a hut in which he had taken shelter. The hut was surrounded and several shots fired to frighten the fugitive out. The shots were returned by the counterfeiter. Then the hut was fired. Biebush rushed out and made a mad dash for liberty, but was caught at a high fence, and, after being manacled, taken back to St. Louis. Once more he was tried, and in December, 1870, he was sentenced to 15 years in the Missouri penitentiary.

He served five years and was again pardoned, returning to St. Louis to resume not only his old calling, but to set up as a dealer in high-class burglars' tools. John Eagan had retired from the secret service to private life and I was transferred to the St. Louis district from Chicago to manage the pursuit of Biebush.

FABLES OF AMERICANS.

Advice of a Sage Who Has a Word for Every One Who Approaches Him.

One day as the sage was sitting under a blue-gum tree and eating his dinner of thistle and burdock roots, a young man approached him and said: relates the Chicago Daily News:

"O, sage, I have traveled many a weary mile to ask thy advice."

"Why didn't you send a postal card?" was asked. "It has got so you can send most anything on a postal card nowadays and no one will read it except the party addressed."

"What I craved for, O sage, was a heart-to-heart talk."

"Well, out with it. I suppose the girl saved all your letters, and that in at least 200 of them you asked her to marry you? That's always the way with a fool of a man."

"It is not a breach of promise suit, O man of wisdom. I should be glad if it were only that. The fact is I have been the confidential man of a great firm."

"As usual."

"Having figured out a scheme to beat the races, I found that I hadn't money enough of my own."

"As usual some more."

"I therefore dipped into each cash box, meaning of course to replace the amount."

"Just so."

"But as my favorites constantly came in last, instead of first, I steadily lost. In time I found myself in the hole to the tune of 5,000 plunks, and there was nothing for me but flight."

"But you stole at least 5,000 more before you flew, didn't you?"

"Of course. That is, I thought 5,000 wouldn't be much of a steal, so I took 20,000. I have the bundle here. Advise me, O sage."

"If you had flown without making a grab I should have had no advice to offer," replied the wise man, "but being you have brought most of the bundle along I shall give you a straight tip. I take 5,000 for settling the case, you retain the same amount for not stealing all the firm had, and they accept of 10,000 because they can get no more. You will help along the sage business, I help you out of the country, and the firm counts up its cash every Saturday night after this. Hand over my share before the corners of the bills get worn off."

Moral: It was later on discovered that the sage was a lawyer in disguise.

Cause and Effect.

"Excuse me, madam," said the polite hobo, "but I crave your assistance. The iron has entered my soul."

"That," replied the icy-hearted lady, "is doubtless why you look so rusty."

And she slammed the door.—Chicago Daily News.

WORST FORM OF ECZEMA.

Black Splotches All Over Face—Affected Parts Now Clear as Ever—Cured by the Cuticura Remedies.

"About four years ago I was afflicted with black splotches all over my face and a few covering my body, which produced a severe itching irritation, and which caused me a great deal of annoyance and suffering, to such an extent that I was forced to call in two of the leading physicians of my town. After a thorough examination of the dreaded complaint they announced it to be skin eczema in its worst form. They treated me for the same for the length of one year, but the treatment did me no good. Finally my husband purchased a set of the Cuticura Remedies, and after using the contents of the first bottle of Cuticura Soap and Ointment, the breaking out entirely stopped. I continued the use of the Cuticura Remedies for six months, and after that every splotch was entirely gone and the affected parts were left as clear as ever. The Cuticura Remedies not only cured me of that dreadful disease, eczema, but other complicated troubles as well. Lizzie E. Sledge, 540 Jones Ave., Selma, Ala. Oct. 28, 1905."

HOSPITALS CROWDED

MAJORITY OF PATIENTS WOMEN

Mrs. Pinkham's Advice Saves Many From this Sad and Costly Experience.

It is a sad but certain fact that every year brings an increase in the number of operations performed upon women in our hospitals. More than three-fourths of the patients lying on those snow-white beds are women and girls who are awaiting or recovering from operations made necessary by neglected

Every one of these patients had plenty of warning in that bearing down feeling, pain at the left or right of the abdomen, nervous exhaustion, pain in the small of the back, pelvic catarrh, dizziness, flatulency, displacements or irregularities. All of these symptoms are indications of an unhealthy condition of the female organs, and if not heeded the trouble may make headway until the penalty has to be paid by a dangerous operation, and a lifetime of impaired usefulness at best, while in many cases the results are fatal.

Miss Luella Adams, of Seattle, Wash., writes:

"About two years ago I was a great sufferer from a severe female trouble, pains and headaches. The doctor prescribed for me and finally told me that I had a tumor and must undergo an operation if I wanted to get well. I felt that this was my death warrant, but I spent hundreds of dollars for medical help, but the tumor kept growing. Fortunately I corresponded with an aunt in the New England States, and she advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as it was said to cure tumors. I did so and immediately began to improve in health, and I was entirely cured, the tumor disappearing entirely, without an operation. I wish every suffering woman would try this great preparation."

Just as surely as Miss Adams was cured of the troubles enumerated in her letter, just so surely will Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cure female troubles, inflammation, kidney troubles, nervous excitability or nervous prostration.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all young women who are ill to write her for free advice. She is daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham and for twenty-five years has been advising sick women free of charge. Address, Lynn, Mass.

DAZED WITH PAIN.

The Sufferings of a Citizen of Olympia, Wash.

L. S. Gorham, of 516 East 4th St., Olympia, Wash., says: "Six years ago I got wet and took cold, and was soon flat in bed, suffering tortures with my back. Every movement caused an agonizing pain, and the persistence of it exhausted me, so that for a time I was dazed and stupid."

On the advice of a friend I began using Doan's Kidney Pills and soon noticed a change for the better. The kidney secretions had been disordered and irregular, and contained a heavy sediment, but in a week's time the urine was clear and natural again and the passages regular. Gradually the aching and soreness left my back and then the lameness. I used six boxes to make sure of a cure, and the trouble has never returned."

Sold by all dealers. 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

IMPRESSED WITH WESTERN CANADA.

Says Our Prairies Will Be Filled Up
in Ten Years.

L. A. Stockwell, of Indianapolis, a United States land man who made an extensive tour of inspection in the west, wrote the following article, under date of Jan. 8, for an Indiana publication:

"States." In this letter I propose to show by extracts from my note book that thousands who have come up here from the "States" have succeeded far beyond their most sanguine expectations.

Mr. N. E. Beaumunk, of Brazil, Indiana, was earning $100.00 per month with a coal company. At about the age of 40 he had saved about $3,000.
Four years ago he landed near Hanley,
Sask. He now owns 480 acres of land.
Last fall (1905) he threshed 4,700 bushels of wheat and 3,100 bushels of oats.
His wheat alone brought him over $4,000, which would have paid for the acres that it grew on. He is to-day worth $15,000.

This Is Making Money Fast.

In Feb., 1902, J. G. Smith & Bro. were weavers in a big cotton mill in Lancashire, England. Coming here, they arrived in Wapella, Sask., with only $750.00 between them. They were so "green" and inexperienced that all they could earn the first summer was $6.00 per month, and the first winter they had to work for their board. The next year, 1903, they took homesteads, and by working for neighbors they got a few acres broken out, upon which the next year they raised a few hundred bushels of wheat and oats. They also bought a team and broke out about sixty acres more. In 1905, they threshed 17,000 bushels of wheat from it, and 13,000 bushels of oats. Their success being then assured, they borrowed some money, built a good house, barn and implement shed, and bought a cream separator, etc. They now have a dozen cows, some full blooded pigs and chickens, good teams and implements to match, and are on the high road to prosperity. Here are three cases selected from my note book from among a score of others. One, a mine boss, one a farmer, and one a factory operator. With each of them I took tea and listened to their story. "I hoped to better my condition," said
one. "I thought in time I might make a home," said another. "I had high expectations," said the other, and all said that "I never dreamed it possible to succeed as I have."

Like Arabian Nights.

Everywhere, on the trains, at the hotels and in family I have been told successes that reminded me more of the stories in the Arabian Nights than of this matter-of-fact workaday world.
Yields of wheat from 35 to 53 bushels per acre, and of oats from 60 to 100 bushels, are numerous in every locality and well authenticated. At Moose Jaw, Lethbridge, Calgary, Edmonton, Regina, Brandon, Hanley and many intermediate places I saw cattle and young horses fat as our grain-fed animals of the "States" that had never tasted grain, and whose cost to their owners was almost nothing. At Moosomin I saw a trainload of 1,400 steers en route to England, that were shaky fat, raised as above stated. If the older generation of farmers in Indiana, who have spent their lives in a contest with logs and stumps as did their fathers before them, could see these broad prairies dotted with comfortable homes, large red barns, and straw piles innumerable, and the thriving towns with their towering elevator jammed to the roof with "No. 1 hard,"
and then remember that four or five years ago these plains were tenantless but for the badger and coyote, they would marvel at the transformation.
Then if they followed the crowds as they emerged from the trains and hurried to the land offices, standing in line until their respective turns to be waited on came, and saw with what rapidity these lands are being taken, they would certainly catch the "disease" and want some of it, too. If these lands are beautiful in midwinter, with their long stretches of yellow stubble standing high above the snow, what must they be in summer time, when covered with growing or ripening grains? Speaking of winter, reminds me that our Hoosier friends shrug their shoulders when they read in the Chicago and Minneapolis dailies of the temperature up here. For that very reason I am here this winter. The Canadian literature with its pictures, half-tones and statistics, gives a good idea of her resources, but thirty or forty degrees below zero sounds dangerous to a Hoosier, who nearly freezes in a temperature of five above, especially when accompanied by a wind, as it often is, but the fact is, when it is very cold here it is still and the air being dry, the cold is not felt as it is in our lower latitudes, where there is more humidity in the atmosphere. I am 56, and I never saw a finer winter than the one I am spending up here. I arrived in Winnipeg Nov. 9, and have not had the bottoms of my overshoes wet since I entered Canada. Under a cloudless sky I have ridden in sleighs nearly a thousand miles, averaging a drive every other day. Stone masons have not lost a week's time so far this winter. Building of all kinds goes right ahead in every city and hamlet, as though winter were never heard of.

ment Agent, whose advertisement ap-

AGRICULTURAL HINTS

CONVENIENT SMOKE-HOUSE

One Which Can Be Built at Small Expense and Which Will Do Good Work.

A smokehouse like the one shown is a good thing to have on every farm.
Build of matched boards with shingle roof. Six feet square is a good size.
Build close to a side hill so that a small furnace, A, may be made of clay, bricks or sheet iron or a large tile may be used. This should be connected with the smokehouse by ten feet

THE SMOKE HOUSE.

of eight-inch tile, B. A piece of stove-pipe should lead out through the roof, having a damper at D that can be worked from the outside of the house.
Hang meat in the house, explains the Farm and Home, build a fire at the furnace of green birch chips, turn the damper so as to let the draft out through the stovepipe till the fire gets going well, then shut the damper and cover draft in furnace and the smokehouse will do business for six hours at least.

A GRAIN BIN.

Plan of One Which Will Economize Space, and Be Easy of Access.

A grain bin somewhat similar to that shown in the cut was recently seen by the writer, and its economy of space struck him favorably.

Its thickness from the wall out is not more than one foot, yet because it reaches to the floor and can be carried up four feet from the floor, its capacity is large.
One-half of the front is hinged so that all the contents can be easily reached, even when the grain is nearly used up. For limited quarters, says the Farm Journal, such bins would certainly prove very useful.

SUGGESTIONS.

Buy seed corn on the ear, when it can be obtained in that way.
See that the seed corn is all germi-nable.

While the mows are full of hay, it is a good time to fix the pulleys in the roof of the barn for using the horse fork next year. Not so much danger of falling and getting injured.
When it gets so that we can dig a bit of horseradish with the pick or crowbar, it is a sure sign that spring is coming. Keep up your spirits; horseradish is the sure forerunner of spring.—Farm Journal.

Man Is Master of the Land.

There are no soil conditions that cannot be overcome by man if those conditions are such that they interfere with the growing of crops. What seems impossible now will be possible later, when the value of land has risen to the point where great operations will pay. The sandy, leachy soils can be covered with a layer of clay and the heavy lands can be sanded. The swamp land can be drained and the arid lands watered. The time will come when man will put into use every foot of land not closed up by the eternal ice around the poles.
Even in the far north, glass gardens will yet become numerous and beat back the frost line.

Alfalfa Pointers.

Alfalfa is a deep rooted plant, hence requires soils in which the subsoil is of such a nature that the roots can readily penetrate it. It must be well drained to a depth of at least two feet or the alfalfa will not prosper.

Any field likely to be under water for more than 36 hours at a time is quite unsuitable for alfalfa. The same is true of a field with hardpan subsoil within two feet of the surface.

To get a stand of alfalfa sow sufficient good seed which you know will germinate. Have the land well prepared and in a good state of fertility, and be sure that the land is well drained.

Fertilizers.

A man must use fertilizers intelligently or he will throw away a great deal of money upon them. It is absurd for a farmer to purchase a fertilizer just because it is a valuable fertilizer and put it upon land that he does not know needs fertilizers. A man should not expend a dollar in fertilizers till he knows what kinds he needs. If his land is rich in a certain element he will but throw money away if he buys fertilizers to put on his land. Wasting money in this way is one of the penalties of not know-

Boys Thought He Was to Be Pitied,

THE SECRET OF SUCCESS

"No, Sir! You cannot palm off any substitutes on me. I've been using August Flower since I was a boy, and I'll have no other."

Forty million bottles of August Flower sold in the United States alone since its introduction! And the demand for it is still growing. Isn't that a fine showing of success? Don't it prove that August Flower has had unflinching success in the cure of indigestion and dyspepsia—the worst enemies of health and happiness? Does it not afford the best evidence that August Flower is a sure specific for all stomach and intestinal disorders?—that it is the best of all liver regulators?—that August Flower has a matchless record of over 35 years in curing the ailing millions of these distressing complaints. Two sizes, 25c and 75c. All druggists.

There's a man in Huntley called Riser, Who can make steam with wet wood or dry, sir. He is single as yet, But if married he gets.

He will pick out a girl named Elizer.

Neighbor Carson of River street is mourning the loss of four lbs. of butter, which was stolen from his residence Sunday night. This is a new brand of butter that is sold by groceryman Crum, of Carson is the loser. Mr. Crum looks upon the incident as a very flattering advertisement for his goods, as he had requested Mr. Carson to distribute samples of the butter to the towns people, but did not look for anything like this. Mr. Carson being something of a poet submits the following:

Of all the thieves beneath the skies, A butter thief I do despise, I do not mind a little joke, But may this thief on butter choke.

Next time he comes I'll make him halt, And fill his body with rock salt; May he an honest man become, And buy his butter from Merchant Crum.

It is said that an escaped convict once planted one of these seeds and while watching the soil change color, the seed sprouted and the plant grew so fast that it encircled him and held him firmly to the spot. The man screamed for help and while he had his mouth open a cucumber grew from the vine and filled his mouth so he choked to death. And it was a poor season for cucumbers too. Great things are expected from these seeds. Pickle factories will be in evidence in the near future. "Pap" Blodgett and Squire Finn please sit up and notice.

As Viewed by a Southern Yankee.

WINGATE, MISS., March 1, 1906.

DEAR HARRY:— In answer to your request some time ago to write a letter for publication, I have put down a few facts as they came to me to-day, as I am convalescing from the effects of too strenuous efforts put forth out in the woods last week, and I hope these retrospective lines will not jar your nerves too severely, old boy.

The recent investigations into "Frenzied Finance" and the conduct and methods of life insurance companies in handling the funds of their policy holders, railroad mergers, steel, beef and oil trusts, etc., together with the history of the great body of wealthy men, who have been posing before the public during the recent years as "Captains of Industry," some of whom have turned literary and wrote for the magazines articles on advice to young men, etc. These investigations have not in all cases stood the test of the search-light, much less the investigation into their business methods and political intrigue.

To my mind one consoling fact stands out prominently. In scanning this list of powerful wealthy financiers and "Great Captains of Industry," do you find a single name of one who took any conspicuous or subordinate part in the civil war for the preservation of the union, although the average ages of these men show they were men in full vigor and health during the war period?

These men, as a rule, if living near the theatre of excitement and danger, became army supply contractors, and when living in remote points and could see with a clearer vision the evident outcome of the war, who possessed the cool and calculating judgment and hard sense that enabled them to lay the foundation of their fortunes, by reason of the inflation of high prices and subsequent development of the country, in railroad, iron and lumber and other ways augmented by unprecedented emigration. The lamentable fact remains, in numerous instances, where these same men by means of their wealth thus acquired during the period of strife, became in later years the purchasing power in practical politics and secured to themselves the fruits that really and justly belonged to others.

These men could be relied upon for large contributions to campaign funds, either for the purpose of effecting favorable legislation or silencing unfavorable legislation.

In some notable instances, in close political sections, business firms made it convenient, (not from principle, but for policy sake), to be divided in their political affiliations so as to catch the favors, "both the comin' and the goin'," as the darkey says.

The men who were imbued with true patriotic fervor and interest in the stability of our institutions, enrolled themselves in defense of their country and made sacrifices in many other ways, and when the war ended, they came home with a sense of duty well performed and were satisfied with the plans of a grateful people. By reason of this sense of self satisfaction, became by degrees, not intentionally but nevertheless true, the dupes of these very men who remained at home, who, as occasion seemed to require, spent lavishly for political meetings, brass bands, excursions, dinners, and encourage, if not pay for, "Bloody Shirt" orators to hang the people to keep up excitement and blind them to the true facts.

The ground work and bulwark of our country lies in the hands of the great body of common people. The "Blue Bloods" and so-called 40c, are not to be depended upon in any crisis.

It is dangerous to attempt to "fool all the people all the time." Lincoln said it could not be done. The few real statesmen whom the people love to honor are now, and have been, men of small means. The high officials who pose as statesmen and have made their millions, although had nothing to build it on except the government salary paid them in installments, made it by graft and boodle or tampering with either State or National campaign funds. The political statesman who is kept in office by the influence of some powerful trust company or corporation, or by the power secured in successfully shaking the grafted plumb tree of debauchery, will be buried in oblivion, and whose memory will over be associated with everything tending to degrade humanity.

It does not seem possible, yet I firmly believe it true, that the great wave of political reform, sweeping in its path States, Governments, cities and towns, is the culmination of resistance of the common people to the encroachment of agrarian wealth, wrongly and unwisely used in debasing, debauching and the gradual breaking down of the old-fashioned standard of morals among the people and the wealth thus acquired, what could be called the aftermath of the civil war, as effecting the great north and west, brought about gradually by the methods mentioned.

The South also had its share of the aftermath, but it came immediately after the war, during the days of reconstruction, and its effect has passed away. It is a tragedy free from the abuses as exposed in St. Louis, Chicago, Cincinnati, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh. It is difficult to decide whether Pennsylvania should be free or not from the political bosses. I suppose the true man living on poor soil so long that he became used to it and prefers it to something good is one reason the people submit to impositions and high taxes. The people of Pennsylvania are taxed more and the corporations less than anywhere else, and yet they vote to continue the bosses in power. I drank in Republican principles in the spigot in Fremont's campaign in 1856 and rode with the older boys and men during the "wide-awake and rail-splitting" campaign of 1860. In those days Republicans won National recognition by advocating and administering Republican principles. This was continued all along the line, down to recent times. These principles believe local self-government, local government for towns and cities, a free press, encouragement to industries, improvements, just and equal administration of laws. The result was the party entered all subsequent campaigns with pride and force that carried conviction and always had a clean record that they could, on all occasions, point to with pride. How does that record stand now in Pennsylvania? It would be fatal to any assembled convention to attempt to point with pride to the record as made by the Republican machine. The Republican party does not know how to take responsibility for what has been going on for past years. What can a fellow, away from home, say in defending Republicanism, when asked to explain the principles as apparently endorsed by a majority of about half a million votes? Verily the deeds of the wicked when they are gone, as is evidenced by the cortege of office-holders still in power under the system inaugurated by him of the Grafted Plumb Tree fame.

Andrew G. Curtin was the brainiest man and great statesman Pennsylvania has had in 50 years. That is why he was brutally treated politically by the Cameron, who saw in him a formidable rival. Cameron had the advantage of great wealth acquired by conniving with army contractors and other forms of graft, well known to the Cameron, was a man of limited means, but a true patriot and statesman, and was loved by the soldiers and their widows and orphans as no man has ever been before or since. When Cameron had fastened his dynasty on the people he continued it by resigning the Senatorship after perfecting an agreement to have himself appointed to his place. Cameron's recommendation for the high place was that he had been cashier in a bank in some obscure town on the banks of the Susquehanna river. And poor Andrew G. Curtin was finally beaten for the re-nomination to Congress by a neighboring individual whose initials acquire a large place of the alphabet. In debauching the delegates by lavish expenditure of money and boodle, made by this stay-at-home patriot and his friends, while Curtin worked night and day, for four long years, along Lincoln's path down the rebellion. Curtin was one of the President's most staunch and reliable supporters during those trying times. When Cameron was elected to the seat of honor, Chas. T. Yerkes, brings to mind a little incident that happened at a State election in 1872 or '73 he was serving time in the State penitentiary for tampering with State funds. The Republic had nominated a candidate who was suspected by many, to have been implicated with Yerkes. When the election returns came in from the township it showed one vote for Yerkes for State Treasurer. Of course the officers thought it was simply a mistake, but it was not. The voter indicated by that vote to record his disapproval of the regular nominee and the action of the party in forcing it on the people. That "fool" voter associates, so they had him pardoned out. With his share of the boodle he was able to exploit in high finance, and a few years later trapped M. S. Quay in his Chicago street car scheme. From there he went to London, England, and showed the English a trick or two and amassed a big fortune, and also from what the papers say, a bigger scandal.

A Garden For a Dollar

WHAT'S that, a Garden for $1.00? Yes, Reader, that's just what I mean, a complete garden with the various kinds of vegetables needed to supply your table abundantly.

All grown from the famous BUCKBEE seeds, the seeds that are "full of life," the best seed that money can buy. This offer combines both quantity and quality.

You never had one just like it before. Think of it, a Garden for a Dollar!

A good vegetable garden, properly managed, means a great deal to you. It means health, economy, and the sense of personal satisfaction that springs from creative power.

You bring something into the world when you make a garden. It draws you close to Nature, gives you a chance to dig in the ground and prove your strength mentally and physically through contact with Mother Earth.

A good garden grown from Buckbee's "Full of Life" seeds makes you independent of the Doctor and the Green Grocer.

It gives you health, your money, and gives you the element of all pleasures, a useful work in the open air. And it costs you only one dollar.

Here's what you can have:

- Buckbee's Early Sunrise Sweet Corn.
- Buckbee's World-Beating Cucumbers.
- Buckbee's Sweet and Hot Peas.
